Murphy to Release
Federal Funds for Child Care NOW!

In April, New Jersey received nearly $700 million in federal funds for child care through the American Rescue Plan. Despite the continued staffing and financial crises rocking the industry, those funds have yet to be released.

Working parents struggle to find care that can accommodate work schedules, if they can find it at all, and pay for it. Low worker wages, inadequate staffing and increased child care costs will continue to impact parents and centers alike until federal funding is released.
